

LOCKSMITH

RECEPTIONIST

Jimmy the Locksmith. Your key to success. How can I help you?

CALLER

You sell holes?

RECEPTIONIST

This is Jimmy the Locksmith. Who may I ask is calling?

CALLER

Me. I'm calling.

RECEPTIONIST

And how can I help you?

CALLER

Do you sell holes? You know, in the door?

RECEPTIONIST

Yes sir. We can install a peephole in your door.

CALLER

Whoa, whoa, lady! I'm not a pervert! I just need a hole in my door so I can see who's outside!

RECEPTIONIST

Sir, I said 'peephole,' not 'peep show.'

(Cont.)

CALLER

What's the difference? Don't you need one to use the other?

RECEPTIONIST

We can install a small hole in your front door so you can see whoever is outside. How soon can we schedule an appointment?

CALLER

Who said anything about a front door?

RECEPTIONIST

Well, that's typically where people place a peephole.

CALLER

Perverts, that's who.

RECEPTIONIST

So where would you like yours?

CALLER

Wouldn't you like to know.

RECEPTIONIST

Sir, in order for me to assist you, I need to determine whether or not we can properly install the peephole.

CALLER

Bathroom door. There, you happy?!

RECEPTIONIST

Okay, I have a feeling you're having a laugh at my expense.

CALLER

You guys charge for laughter?

(Cont.)

RECEPTIONIST

It's a figure of speech.

CALLER

Oh. 'Figure of speech.' I'm writing that down.

RECEPTIONIST

So let's assume I heard you correctly. You would like a peephole installed into your bathroom door?

CALLER

What size?

RECEPTIONIST

Excuse me?

CALLER

What size peepholes you got?

RECEPTIONIST

Well, they're all the same size. Half-inch in diameter on both sides.

CALLER

Half an inch? How much for the whole inch?

RECEPTIONIST

If you're looking for something that's custom, we can refer you to a contractor. Here's a number...

CALLER

Porthole.

RECEPTIONIST

What?

(Cont.)

CALLER

I want a porthole. You know, like on a boat. Also, I want one where people can see in, but I can't see out.

RECEPTIONIST

Why on earth... you know what? It doesn't matter. Here's a number...

CALLER

To answer your question, isn't it obvious? I want a one-way mirrored porthole in my bathroom door so people, i.e. my in-laws, can see whether or not someone's on the toilet! You know how many times those two idiots have walked in on me while I'm dropping the kids off at the pool?

RECEPTIONIST

Oh dear... (PAUSE) Sir, honestly, it sounds like all you need is a locksmith.

CALLER

Okay. What's that number?

(FX: CLICK!)